Memphis has railroads and rail roads, but there is yet room for more, which will come in due sea-

The next enterprise of this character to claim attention from the wide-awake bu sings men of this city will be the Memphis, Belivar & Henderson railroad.

A few years ago there was organzed a corporation, the object of which was to construct a railroad hence to Knoxville. It was styled The Memphis & Knoxville Ranrand company," Gen. R. P. Fer some building operations closed after the roadbed was finished, and it now stands almost intact, with not one cent outstanding to embarrass when the project is revived. The wide-awake, go-ahead people of Hendersen, have strong faith in railroads and a warm regard for Memphis, They long for more direct railway connection, so that closer business and social relations may be established The Appeal learns from Mr. George W. Harris, who was present, that a representative mass meeting, in which genuine outhusiasm was a marked teature, was held at Henderson on Tuesday last Mr. M On Saturdaay resolution was F.
